3 (42 U.S.C. 3001 et seq.) can meet the special
4 health-related or other dietary needs of program
5 participants; and

6           (4) to help meet the urgent transportation
7 needs of Holocaust survivors.

8 SEC. 3. FINDINGS.

9 Congress finds the following:

10           (1) During the Holocaust, which took place be-
11 tween 1933 and 1945, an estimated 6,000,000 Jews, 12 as well as millions from other targeted groups, were 13 murdered by the Nazis and their collaborators.

14           (2) The United States Holocaust Memorial Mu-
15 seum Encyclopedia estimates that more than 16 200,000 Jews found refuge in the United States
17 from 1933 to 1945, and estimates that approxi-
18 mately 137,000 Jewish refugees had settled in the 19 United States from 1945 to 1952.

20           (3) Jewish refugees continued to immigrate to 21 the United States from Europe and countries of the 22 former Soviet Union during the subsequent decades.

23           (4) According to the Conference on Jewish Ma-
24 terial Claims Against Germany's 2011 Worldbook: A
25 Guide to Claims Conference Programs Worldwide,

1 the “Estimated Nazi Victim Population” in the 2 United States is 120,935, down from an estimated
3 127,300 in 2010.

4 (5) According to the Conference on Jewish Ma-
5 terial Claims Against Germany’s 2011 Worldbook: A
6 Guide to Claims Conference Programs Worldwide,
7 “of Nazi victims currently residing in the United 8 States, three in five are women,” and “the average
9 age of a Nazi victim is 80, but nearly one-quarter 10 are age 85 or over.”

11 (6) Holocaust survivors continue to live with 12 the unique mental and physical scars of the uncon-
13 scionable trauma caused by the Holocaust, and while 14 institutionalized settings are beneficial for some, cer-
15 tain aspects of institutionalization may have particu-
16 larly adverse effects on Holocaust survivors.

17 (7) For many Holocaust survivors, institutional-
18 ized settings produce sights, sounds, smells, emo-
19 tions, and routines which can induce panic, anxiety,
20 and re-traumatization as a result of experiences
21 from the Holocaust.

22 (8) According to Findings from the National
23 Jewish Population Survey 2000-01, a Jewish Fed-
24 erations of North America Report produced in De-
25 cember 2003, Nazi “victims are more economically

1 and socially vulnerable, report poorer health and 2 more health problems, and have somewhat greater
3 social service needs.” They also report poorer health
4 and more disabilities that limit daily activities com-
5 pared to nonvictims.

6 (9) Low-income Holocaust survivors are more
7 reliant on social service programs than most other
8 older Americans, and proportionally more Holocaust
9 survivors need services such as personal care, home-
10 delivered and congregate meals, transportation,
11 counseling, and mental health support to promote 12 health and quality of life.

13 (10) Community organizations serving Holo-
14 caust survivors report that approximately two-thirds 15 of Holocaust survivors live alone, and living alone is 16 a risk factor for hospitalization and nursing home
17 admission, poverty, falls, depression, poor nutrition,
18 social isolation and loneliness which have been asso-
19 ciated with poor health outcomes and an increased
20 risk of death.

21 (11) According to Findings from the National
22 Jewish Population Survey 2000-01, more than half 23 of all Holocaust survivors who immigrated to the 24 United States from the former Soviet Union after 25 1965 have annual incomes beneath the Federal pov-

1       erty threshold and constitute an extremely vulner-
2       able at-risk population in the United States.

3           (12) Community organizations serving Holo-
4       caust survivors report that transportation is vital to 5       help Holocaust survivors attend medical appoint-
6       ments, shop and purchase necessary items, visit
7       family and friends, and participate in cultural, rec-
8       reational, or social events, such as congregate meals
9       or religious services.

10          (13) As the general population of older adults
11       increases and public or philanthropic resources re-
12       main constant, providers serving older adults includ-
13       ing Holocaust survivors need additional capacity to 14       cover the needed services.

15          (14) The Administration for Community Living
16       in the Department of Health and Human Services
17       serves as the Federal agency responsible for increas-
18       ing access to community supports, while focusing at-
19       tention and resources on the unique needs of older 20       Americans and people with disabilities across the 21       lifespan.

22          (15) The mission of the Administration for 23       Community Living is to maximize the independence,
24       well-being, and health of older adults, people with 25       disabilities, and their families and caregivers.

1           (16) Many social service agencies that receive
2       funding under the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42
3       U.S.C. 3001 et seq.) for home-delivered or con-
4       gregate meals serve diverse seniors with specialized 5       dietary needs based on religious, cultural, or ethnic 6       requirements, and the necessary special meals often
7       cost more than nonspecial meals.
